Melanie, Angela

Following the email trail below I understand the preparations for the Panorama programme are quite progressed.

Is there any more support you need from Fujitsu to prepare for this programme, building on the responses we have previously provided?

Would you be able to share the briefing/ current areas of questioning Panorama have shared with Post Office as the phrasing of the example provided could be seen as divisive?

Can you also provide the final version of the Second Sight report and your response to that document?

Pete Newsome remains our lead in supporting you in relation to this activity and please contact him or myself if you need anything further.

Kind Regards

Gavin

Neil,

Neil, as discussed this is the note from the Post Office press office. You will see the Post Office have a briefing tomorrow then possibly a filmed interview on 17 June. I will ask them to provide an update after the Tuesday briefing and pass this on.

Meantime our line, at the request of the Post Office, is to not comment and pass any calls onto them.

Regards
Graham

Hi Graham

I've hear this afternoon that there was a filming going outside your offices in Bracknell - BBC filming with an old Royal Mail bike - I expect this will be part of the Panorama programme.

The programme is still scheduled for 22/6. We are holding an on the record briefing with two of their reporters on Tuesday June 9 and we are likely to go ahead with a filmed interview with them on the 17th.

We've had some indication of lines of questioning, but I think we will get far more of a sense of this on Tuesday so will update you after that. The current areas of questioning do include, for example, whether we trust what FJ has told us about remote access. I suspect this will be a key area for the programme, given that it can be made to look sensational (despite the fact that it is a complete red herring).

Let me know if you want more info – I'll keep you updated as this moves forward.
Best wishes
