I had a telephone conversation with Ruth Simpson. Explaining to her what had happened re: the evidence of the last witness of the Post Office – Ann Chambers of Fujitsu and the document we had now disclosed and that as a consequence Mr Castleton wanted to re-examine her. Explaining that on the one hand, I was conscious this was going to incur further inconvenience, time and cost to both the Post Office and the witnesses. On the other hand I wanted to make sure Mr Castleton had an absolutely fair crack of the whip. Asking her whether she would be available for next Thursday. She is. I agreed to ring her on Monday and let her know what is happening.
