We have to be very careful not to implied something which has not been proven in court as to conviction or smear her character. I would only

Say ;

“As Tracey Merritt, the ex-subpostmistress of Yetminster branch has repaid the bulk of the money and is currently repaying the remainder , on this occasion, the Post Office has decided not to pursue the matter further” The Post Office continues to have absolute confidence in the robustness and integrity of its Horizon system and its branch accounting processes.”

I would add the following in the second sentence after prosecution “for false accounting” – Jarnail do you agree?

Should we also include a reference to our consideration of the “use of public funds”....

Jarnail/Susan

In response to the approach from the Western Morning News re the case of Tracey Merritt, ex-subpostmistress of Yetminster branch, below is the response I propose we give to the paper. Before I put it in front of Paula, can you please take a look and see that you are comfortable. Their deadline is 3pm today:

“As Tracey Merritt, the ex-subpostmistress of Yetminster branch has repaid the bulk of the money and is currently repaying the remainder , on this occasion, the Post Office has decided not to pursue the matter further. We remain entirely satisfied that any criminal prosecution, if pursued, would have been successful. The Post Office continues to have absolute confidence in the robustness and integrity of its Horizon system and its branch accounting processes."

Also, I asked the newspaper to tell me what the notice in the branch says and they tell me it's says the following, which is something else we may well want to pick up -

- Big thank you to all who supported me
- Your letters have helped and been taken seriously
- They brought about an independent investigation
- All charges have been dropped and the Post Office has finally accepted that there is fault with its Horizon system

Thanks

Ronan
