Dear Mrs Arch,

Thank you for your email of 1 August to the Rt Hon Boris Johnson MP, about interim payments for postmasters with quashed convictions. Your correspondence has been passed to the Department for Business, Energy and Industrial Strategy. I have been asked to reply and I sincerely apologise for the delay in responding.

The Government understands the serious impact that issues arising from faults with the Horizon IT system, and the Post Office's management of these issues, have had on affected postmasters' lives and livelihoods. The Government recognises the distress that postmasters and their families have suffered since faults with the Horizon system began, with some having their livelihoods and businesses taken away and some convicted of crimes that we now know they did not commit.

The Post Office has accepted that it got things wrong and has apologised. However, the Government has been clear that this apology must only be the start of a process that leads to a real and fundamental change in the Post Office.

The Government announced on 22 July that it would provide the Post Office with support to make interim payments of up to £100,000 per eligible postmaster whose conviction is quashed. Only postmasters who were convicted using evidence reliant on Horizon, who then have their conviction quashed, would be eligible for an interim payment. As you were acquitted, you would not be eligible for compensation by this route, though you are able to pursue a claim for malicious prosecution.

I hope this response is helpful to you.

Yours sincerely,

U.Fatania
