Gideon,

I have started going through the draft grounds. They look pretty good to me, although (inevitably) I have quite a few comments, mostly of a small nature.

As to your question, I haven't got the relevant Rules/PD immediately to hand (lazy, as I could look them up), but, subject to considering them, my immediate reaction is that we should raise the point.

David

Should we include the point about the desirability of multiple LJs looking at it?

Dear David,

As we discussed, I have done a substantial re-write of the draft grounds that you produced. I have left in your comments and included my own where a particular change is worth flagging and explaining.

The document is now slightly shorter despite containing an introduction. I have mostly kept the same content. It remains a beast, despite my efforts at trimming.

I have borne in mind Lord Neuberger's comments in the note. Nonetheless, some of the points he makes remain to be discussed and reflected in a final version.

I think the next step could be to decide which points to drop so that Gideon and I do not waste time drafting them up for the skele.

Kind Regard,

Owain

I agree - this is better than not sending anything.
