Marion- for Pamela

Mr Waterworth is the new legal advisor for the Post Office (which is separate from Royal Mail). They have investigators who would look at internal frauds or thefts being committed (eg by postmasters) and submit files to the PPS. This was done in the past by submitting the files through police, hence they were sent to the Regions.

I agreed with Mr Waterworth that F&D would take these cases directly from the Post Office via him. We will agree a SLA and look at the costs- (I have to check this with Nuala).

We are not talking about a huge number of cases- maybe 3-4 a year that come through for a prosecution decision.
