Yes I think that an application especially if not complied with and a costs order against them would be just what we want to remind Castleton of what his little journey into litigation might actually cost him.

Subject: Post Office -v- Castleton: disclosure

Dear Mandy,

1. Following helpful feedback from Vicky and Cath, I attach the reply which I will send to Castleton's solicitors today, dealing with their disclosure requests, unless you have any objections.
2. I am concerned that they have still failed to deliver us their documents. I have chased them repeatedly. We need them to help clarify the issues we need to deal with in witness statements. My advice is that unless we get them very shortly, we should issue an application to Court to compel them to do so. Do you agree?
3. Vicky - please could you update me on the P242 point?

I look forward to hearing from you.

Kind regards.
