Simon

This seems fine and is what we have already agreed with Janet at James Arbuthnot's Office.

With best wishes

Subject: 2nd Sight Audit

All

Some questions have arisen about the process for including cases in the Second Sight review.

The underlying principle we need to bear in mind is that Post Office in no way should be involved in defining which cases to include – it should be coordinated and agreed by the MPs who have requested the review, headed by James Arbuthnot.

The principles I'd like to suggest are below.

- The audit will only include cases that have come through the office of James Arbuthnot.
- This includes the "5 to 10 best" cases from the JFSA – they also need to come through James Arbuthnot's office.
- If the Post Office receive requests from SPMs for their cases to be included, they should ask to their local MP to forward the case to James Arbuthnot's office.
- If we receive requests from MPs we should ask them to forward their case to James Arbuthnot.

- From this list of cases from James Arbuthnot, Second Sight will then need to identify which cases to include in their review – no more than 20, ideally 10. This allows Second Sight to select the cases which they believe will best illuminate the issues of concern.

In terms of timescales, we would like Second Sight to start the work as soon as possible, but so far we only have 5 cases (see list below), so my suggestion is that we keep the door open to the end of August, then draw a line under the scope.

Please let me know your thoughts. If we agree, Alwen, can you forward to James Arbuthnot's Office for his views.

Regards, Simon
