28/09/2011	Nick Wallis Blog – key extracts: I have been working with a journalist at Private Eye magazine over the past few weeks, and a piece on the Post Office Horizon system leads the investigative section "In the Back" in this fortnight's issue (No 1298 30 Sep - 13 Oct p.28). These have prompted dozens of prosecutions and financial ruin for businessmen and women with previously spotless records. Fifty-five of them last week launched a "class action" against the Post Office, arguing that their troubles owe more to computer error than dishonesty The Post Office remains the only body in the UK to run its own prosecutions and campaigners think that if it had to use the Crown Prosecution Service, many cases would not have made it to court. The last organisation with such powers, Customs & Excise, was stripped of them almost a decade ago when it was found to have over-stepped the mark in several high-profile cases.	3.4. ✓

August 2013 •	Nick Wallis Blog- Key extracts: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • It is not just about computer failure. It's about incompetence, intransigence and indifference. It is a story about an organisation's misplaced faith in the infallibility of a computer system and its total disregard for any consequent misery caused. It is a story about ordinary people having their lives ruined through a series of punitive technical, contractual and legal constraints which stacked the odds against them, and then ran them through, good and proper. There are many who have lost everything through no fault of their own. They deserve redress. They need their convictions quashed, and they need their money and reputations back	• 5.16 ✓

09/09/2013	Nick Wallis Blog- Key extracts I would urge any disaffected Subpostmasters reading this to get in touch NOW. As far as I understand it, part of the process of mediation is that you will be required to sign a gagging order which stops you, under threat of being sued, from talking to anyone, especially journalists, about any settlement or agreement you make with the Post Office. What I'm not clear on is whether the gagging order is signed before any settlement is agreed, or whether it's signed as part of the settlement. I can't imagine it's the former, but I did hear someone suggest it was. Even assuming it's only signed on agreement of settlement, it's not ideal. You'll (hopefully) get some money back, but you won't be able to protest your innocence or tell the story of	5.19 ✓
